Noblestar Announces Partnership with Mainline Information Systems

Reston, VA, August 23, 2007 – Noblestar, a professional IT Management Consulting firm, today announced a strategic partnership with Mainline Information Systems.

Noblestar is an IBM Premier Business Partner and specializes in the Rational Software suite of tools, which provide a software development platform that improves the speed, quality and predictability of software projects. Mainline Information Systems is a leading IBM Premier Business Partner, delivering comprehensive technology solutions.

“We are very excited about partnering with Mainline Information Systems,” commented Victoria Miller, Noblestar’s WW Sales and Marketing Director. Miller continued, “By combining our areas of expertise, we will begin to work on joint sales and marketing initiatives and look to identify opportunities, and target customers with a need for a complete IBM hardware and software solution.”

“Working with the Noblestar team, we will now have an expanded capability to develop end-to-end solutions in the application development market,” said Larry Gant, Sr. Director of Software Sales & Technical Support for Mainline. “We believe this will provide significant benefits to our mutual clients.”
