Summit IT Services Signs Sub-Contractor Agreement With Mainline Information Systems

Raleigh, NC – Summit IT Service's President David Turner announced today that his company has entered into a sub-contractor agreement with Mainline Information Systems. Mainline is a long-standing IBM Premier Business Partner with a nationwide sales force. Mainline will source project opportunities where Summit can provide and manage the necessary technical resources to accomplish Mainline's customer objectives.

"Mainline's strong force in the IBM Application Services marketplace will enable Summit to take advantage of the skill sets our consultant base has in many of the IBM Pillars such as Tivoli, Websphere and Rational. These areas will add to our strong foundation of web and application development, QA and testing engagements that have counted for much of our growth over the last few years," said Turner.

"We are always looking for quality technical resource providers such as Summit to help manage short- and mid-term development projects," said Kerry May, Mainline Solutions Sales Executive. "Summit's history of on-time and successful completion of development projects for mid-size and large companies will be a good fit with our goal of ensuring that our customers have the best-designed and supported solutions to meet their individual business requirements."
